ELECTION IN MAINE NEXT MONDAY WATCHED WITH NATIONAL INTEREST

Maine—rock-ribbed Maine—has a state election next Monday and as usual politicians all over the country are watching to see what happens in the state where every election has a marked national angle.

Col. Roosevelt himself has been in Maine, speaking during the third week in August and the colonel is reported to have been cordially received.

All three parties have been engaged for months in the practical work of organization, and the leaders of each claim to be not only satisfied but confident.

The Democrats are declaring with great emphasis that their candidate for governor, Oakley C. Curtis, mayor of Portland, will beat the Republican candidate, William T. Haines, who is now serving his first term as governor, by a substantial plurality, and they express confidence also of general victory in the state and county tickets.

Democrats Denounce Prohibition. Thus far, in their literature and in the few speeches by local candidates, the Democrats have laid all their emphasis on the run question, pointing out what they term the flat failure of Gov. Haines' administration to bring about any better enforcement of the prohibitory law than obtained under previous administrations. Democratic orators are denouncing the whole performance as the continuance in an aggravated form of a political hypocrisy that has cursed Maine for half a century or more.

When the speakers from out the state began talking that rum was somewhat sidetracked or left to the small fry, while national policies as formulated and carried out by the Wilson administration was the text of scores of eminent spellbinders.

Among the men who went to plead the Democratic cause are Representative William A. Cullen of Indiana, Representative William F. Murray of Massachusetts, Representative Kenneth D. McKeller of Tennessee, Representative Eugene F. Kinkaid of New Jersey, Representative William N. Baltz of Illinois, Representative John J. Mitchell and M. E. Phelan of Massachusetts, former Gov. Dockery of Missouri, Secretary of Commerce Redfield, and Representative Thomas L. Bailey of Connecticut.

The Republicans secured among their orators Representatives Julius Kahn of California and J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, for the opening week, with a host of big guns to follow.

Never was the result of an election in Maine more in doubt than now. The achievements of the Wilson administration are favorably viewed in Maine and that will be a source of strength to the Democrats. The cities and towns are opposed to prohibition, and that also will make Democratic votes. But the wave of high prices, now rising higher, is regarded as an adverse factor, and this, with the strength of prohibition in the rural regions, will tend to even things up as between the two old parties.

The lumber business is almost dead, and shipping even worse, while in some other lines there is stagnation and hesitation, but until the war disturbance came there was a generally satisfactory condition in trade and in most industries.

All these things will have their weight with the voters, and have been seized upon by the Republican orators in their efforts to make the people discontented with their lot and dissatisfied with the national administration. Unless the Progressive vote, which in 1912 for Roosevelt, approximated 48,000, has faded, as the chairman of the Republican state committee claims, to almost nothing, the Democrats have the best chance in Maine this year, for the Bull Moose were recruited almost entirely from the Republican party. In September of 1912 they banded with the regular Republicans and Haines was elected governor by about 3100 plurality over Plaisted, Democrat. If even a half of the Moose remain faithful it is easy to see the finish of the Republican ticket from top to bottom, for pluralities elect in all cases, and the Democrats outnumber the Moose in any circumstances and have for years run about even with the Republicans. Just now the Democrats are "sieking" on the Moose, and vice versa, each bent on the defeat of the Republicans.

That the Progressives have lost ground since 1912 there is small doubt. The question is, how much have they lost? And that question cannot be satisfactorily answered until the night of September 14.

At present it looks as if the Republican candidates for Congress in the first and fourth districts would win, while McGillicuddy, Democrat, is likely to be re-elected in the second district, and Pattingal, Democrat, has a fighting chance in the third, where he is opposed by John A. Peters, by whom he was narrowly defeated in the special election last year to fill the seat made vacant by the death of Forrest Goodwin.

Where the Liquor Lines Decide. The county tickets will be chosen, as usual, largely according to local sentiment and conditions, without regard to the larger questions save that of liquor.

In the average Maine county the sheriff is the big man, and more importance is attached to the selection for that office than to all the others combined. Those counties in which the rural element predominates will choose sheriffs who are pledged to the enforcement of the prohibitory law, while in the populous counties, like Cumberland and Penobscot, an opposite result is to be expected, and the "liberal" sheriff is as likely to be chosen as not.

Gov. Haines is committed flatly to the strict enforcement of the law, although he really has very little influence in the matter, one way or the other. The most that any governor can do is to use his influence, whatever that may be, to induce sheriffs to enforce the law, and to ask for their impeachment if they fail to do their duty.

The Supreme Court justices are more to blame than the sheriffs for the impotence of the law, for although countless cases of violation are brought before them they seldom impose jail sentences, and fines are no deterrent. Public sentiment governs the actions of the officials usually, and some of the justices are even divided. This year it may tip the political scale one way or the other, and no man can say which way.

GAMBLING GAME LEADS TO DEATH ON BIG ISLAND

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

HILO, Sept. 10.—Once again is Honokaa the scene of murder and this time it is a young Portuguese, Antonio Fernandez, who is the victim. He was shot dead last Sunday by a Japanese, who is alleged to have cheated the youth in some gambling game at Honokaa village. The alleged murderer's name is Shinoda, and the police authorities declare that they know him well as a professional gambler who is in the habit of traveling over the island and visiting the plantation camps on pay days. He is generally accompanied by a Japanese woman.

The tragedy occurred last Sunday morning, and it was the result of a row that took place over a gambling game. It appears, from the police story, that a number of people were engaged in gambling and that during the game Antonio Fernandez accused Shinoda of cheating. There was a general quarrel, and several people became involved in the mix-up. Scrapping went on in the room where the game was running and eventually Shinoda and another man, who is alleged also to be a professional gambler, ran from the room and sprinted up the road. Fernandez and another youth followed.

Finding that Fernandez was gaining on him rapidly, it is said that Shinoda drew a revolver and, pointing it at the rapidly approaching Fernandez, fired a shot that struck the Portuguese in the heart and killed him instantly. The other Japanese was caught by his pursuer. It is alleged that he also drew a gun and threatened to shoot the man who held him.

Shinoda made a clean getaway, but there is little chance of his escaping. He is known from one end of the island to the other. All the roads are being watched, and police officers are scouring the different camps in an endeavor to capture the murderer.

Late last night a report was current that the bodies of two persons, a man and a woman, were to be seen floating off the shore at Honokaa. The story has not been corroborated yet, but there are those who say that Shinoda and the woman have committed suicide together.

JUDGE CLEMONS ON ANXIOUS SEAT IN WASHINGTON

Harry Irwin's Name Sent to the President but No Action Taken as Yet

By C. S. ALBERT

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 31.—There was a revival of interest in the reorganization of the Hawaiian judiciary with the arrival here of Judge Charles F. Clemons of the federal court. This was short-lived because Attorney-general McReynolds automatically went out of office by being confirmed as an associate justice of the United States supreme court. At the same time Thomas W. Gregory was appointed as the new head of the justice department. Upon him will fall responsibility now for the future of the bench in Hawaii.

Judge Clemons came here at his own expense upon receipt of a cabled request for his resignation. He had two prolonged conferences with Attorney-general McReynolds. Neither afforded any encouragement to the Hawaiian jurist. It was evident from the attitude manifested by the attorney-general that nothing remained but for Judge Clemons to turn in his resignation.

With the arrival of Judge Clemons it happened that President Wilson was taking a few days outing in New Hampshire. He was compelled to sit quietly on the anxious bench until the president's return, feeling meantime that the net result would be about the same as in the celebrated case wherein Saul of Tarsus lost out.

Much curiosity prevails here regarding the matter of Harry Irwin. His name was sent over to the White House several weeks ago with a recommendation from the attorney-general that he be nominated to a judicial position. No action was taken by the president. The appointment went no further and did not reach the senate. All the subordinate officials keep silent on the subject and offer no explanation as to what happened to the selection of Mr. Irwin for a judgeship.

YOU'RE BILIOUS AND COSTIVE—CASCARETS

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, mean Liver and Bowels Clogged—Clean up tonight

Get a 10-cent box now.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give you constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.—advertisement.

WAIOLAMA JOB OF RECLAMATION TO START SOON

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

HILO, Sept. 10.—One hundred and twenty thousand dollars is the sum available at present for the reclamation work in the Waiolama district, and the work of putting in a large canal to drain and carry off the surplus water will soon, according to the superintendent of public works, be under way. The scheme is to start all most immediately on the canal and to finish that job first. The work of filling in the surrounding land and bringing it up to grade will be taken up later on.

The superintendent, who was in Hilo during the week, said that the new canal will be 20 feet wide, nine feet deep, with an additional two feet of a wall along the top sides. The canal will be 4700 feet long and will carry at least four times the amount of water that the old one did. The big ditch will be made wider at the discharging end and it is easy to get the additional width at present, whereas it might be difficult later on.

The money to construct the ditch and do the necessary filling comes from a revolving fund. Mr. Forbes said that it would be well to look to the legal end of the proposition, so as to avoid all sorts of injunctions, so as to have made the Kewalo, Honolulu, reclamation work such a nuisance to everyone connected with the matter.

The superintendent said that as soon as he received the data from the office he will send from his department he will forward the completed plans to the board of trade in order that the members can study them and say whether they are satisfactory or not.

PRESIDENT CONSIDERS NEW SET OF NAVIGATION RULES

is now considering the regulations to be issued under the new shipping law for the registry of alien-built ships under the American flag. Assistant Secretary of Commerce Sweet has made recommendations on the subject, and a decision is expected within the next few days.

If the president adopts the recommendations of Mr. Sweet he will not flatly set aside the provision of the navigation laws requiring masters and mates of ships admitted to American registry to be American citizens, but will set a time limit within which aliens may serve in those capacities. Mr. Sweet's theory is that the alien masters and mates should be encouraged to become American citizens.

Shipping companies whose vessels now fly other flags are withholding formal applications under the new law until the president issues an executive order as authorized by the act. Mr. Sweet believes that if his recommendations are approved about 100 ships will apply for American registry.

A protest from the United States Steel Corporation that its ships were lying idle at great expense while new shipping regulations by the department of commerce are awaited under the new shipping law, was read in the house by Republican Leader Mann.

The company has announced its intention of putting its fleet under the American flag.

W. A. McKay asked the superintendent about the old piles that still remain in the water out from the Kinau wharf. He said that these would have to be removed. Forbes said that that would be attended to with the other part of the work.

Onomea had an average monthly rainfall of 35.67 inches for the four months ended August. The plantation concluded grinding on August 29 with a yield of 19,599 tons of sugar.

With the last of the Hawaiian sugar cargoes by way of the Straits of Magellan, the American-Hawaiian steamer Alaskan arrived at Delaware Breakwater on Tuesday. Its cargo of 10,768 tons brought the price of 6.145c a pound.
